Programme Briefs

Bachelor of Science (Nursing and Midwifery)

This is a self sponsored programme and hence students being admitted to the programme will be expected to pay full fees as stipulated above. There are however 30 scholarships which will be awarded on merit.

The graduate will be equipped with scientific and practical knowledge, and transferable skills to be professionally competent to provide comprehensive quality nursing and midwifery care in Malawi and beyond. The programme aims at producing a graduate nurse-midwife who is client-centred, culturally sensitive, accountable, self-motivated, a change agent, an educator, a manager and a researcher. It covers courses such as basic sciences, nursing and midwifery sciences, behavioural sciences, management and leadership, research and biomedical sciences.

Security Studies

Graduates of these programmes will be equipped with professional knowledge and transferable skills in security sector management that will enable them respond to emerging challenges in the security sector. The programmes offer among others the following courses; Nature of Security, Security Law, Security Resources Management, Immigration and Development, Military History, International Relations, Correctional Management and Public Policy Process. The programmes target officers, managers and other actors from Defence, Police, National Intelligence Services, Immigration, Correction Service, Anti Corruption Bureau, Revenue Collection Authority, Fiscal Management Services, Media and the Judiciary.
